

This ought to be a great day in Chicago. This ought to be a day on which the nations of the earth should take off their hats to the United States. The world has repeatedly tried to make big shows. In the old triumphant days of Rome there were some first-class displays. They all pale into utter insignificance compared to what ought to be seen in the City by the Lakes. It was the habit of Roman chieftains to lead their captives in chains. They rode in war chariots. The hosts of their soldiers followed. The trophies taken in wars of conquest were hauled along to exhibit to the people. All that was possible to make of pomp and magnificence in celebrating the triumph of might over right was on exhibition. But those were nothing compared to this one which is to be presented to the world today. All the chains there will be used will be chains of flowers. The captives that will be led today will be themselves triumphant. This is Liberty's Day to the world and representatives of all the nations will march under her flag. The trophies to be exhibited are such as no Roman conqueror ever brought home in triumph. Those trophies were contributed from all the museums, the galleries, the manufactories of the world; the palaces, the capitols, the mines—from every place where the world keeps guard over its splendors, those trophies were brought, and today are to be unveiled to the great world's gaze. There the Republic's President will speak a few dedicatory words and words of welcome. His touch will set in motion such powers as the ancients never dreamed of. Art and infinite power have joined hands, and when night shall close down the whole magnificent aggregation will be illuminated by such a light as the ancients only saw when storms hung over the mountains and the lightning's flash revealed their peaks. The mere stating of what will be reads like a fairy tale.

For on to watch it and let his imagination work, the story that his soul will rehearse to him, cannot be communicated to this world in words. For several years men have been repeating as a glorified expression, "Peace hath her victories no less renowned than war," but those words, without any Milton to have put them in form, or, at last, the thought behind them would have sprung to the mind of every one to-day who will be permitted to see that mighty spectacle. It will be the world making obeisance to a genius, the light of whose soul shone out through a darkened age and gave to men a New World, gave to thought a thousand worlds, and caused the world, in fact, to respond to the order, "Bout face, forward march!"—Salt Lake Tribune.

Mrs. Minnie Wheelock of San Jose and Mrs. M. Redfield were driving in a phaeton on the Gish road between the Milpitas and Alviso roads, Tuesday, when they were struck by the engine of the passenger train due at 4:55, via Niles. Mrs. Wheelock was instantly killed and Mrs. Redfield had the scalp torn from one side of her head and received other injuries which will probably prove fatal. Mrs. Wheelock was a wealthy woman and was a sister of Rev. L. Delos Mansfield, rector of Christ's Church, in San Jose. Mrs. Redfield, her sister resident of New York State, was on a visit.

The Carson APPEAL has turned volume 43. We hope to see it turn volume 86. Most people know it as a humorous paper. It is all that, but more; it is an able champion of every good cause, and the uncompromising foe of corruption, and the stronger it is entrenched in power the harder it hits. Nevada is fortunate to have a paper like the APPEAL, and a man at its head who has the confidence of the people.

The APPEAL is the only Carson newspaper one ever hears of outside of Nevada.—S. F. Star.

An Eastern paper tells of a cat that is in love with a hen. The only cat we ever saw that didn't love poultry was quite dead.

Jack Dempsey and Mysterious Billy Smith are matched to fight on June 30th.
